Biography

Jennifer Hatton, MD, PhD, evaluates and treats patients with cancers of the blood and other types of cancers at Goshen Center for Cancer Care. She is specially trained in women's health, including anemia, hematologic disorders and other cancer issues during pregnancy.

Away from her medical practice, Dr. Hatton is an avid fan of Star Wars and Lord of the Rings. She also loves to cook, bake, garden, and she never passes up a chance to ride the roller coasters at amusement parks.

Philosophy of Care

Every patient is a VIP to Dr. Hatton. She treats patients exactly the way she would want family members or herself to be treated. Her strong belief in educating patients about their disease leads to shared decision-making and better outcomes.
