About Me

Nicole Greenlee provides a range of services for patients of all ages at Goshen Physicians Family Medicine & Urgent Care. As a certified family nurse practitioner, she treats common illnesses, including flu, ear infections or headaches. Nicole also cares for patients who need immediate medical attention for chronic conditions, such as diabetes, high blood pressure and breathing issues related to lung disease.

Patient care has been an important part of Nicole's entire nursing career. She has more than a decade of experience as an oncology certified nurse in infusion centers at Goshen Center for Cancer Care and in Indianapolis. She also has attended to patients going through radiation treatment at the Center for Cancer Care. Her years of oncology experience have fueled a true passion for end-of-life care.

While volunteering as a missionary nurse in Kenya, Nicole lived and worked in an orphanage. She helped manage a wide range of pediatric illnesses, including tropical diseases.

Philosophy of Care

Educating patients is as important as treating them medically for Nicole. Professional fulfillment and meaning come from giving patients the best possible care and helping them understand the reason for their treatment. She also believes in treating the whole person, not just the disease.
